

Cyberbullying Among Teenagers: A Growing Digital Threat

What It Is

Cyberbullying is the use of digital technologies such as social media, messaging apps, online gaming, and websites to harass, threaten, embarrass, or target another person.

Why It Matters

Approximately 1 in 3 young people worldwide have experienced cyberbullying.

Social media platforms are among the most common places where cyberbullying occurs.

Teenagers who spend more time online are at higher risk of experiencing cyberbullying.

Examples

* Sending hurtful messages

* Spreading rumors online

* Posting embarrassing photos or videos

* Creating fake accounts

* Excluding someone from online groups

Effects on Mental Health

- 😞 Depression
- 😞 Anxiety
- 😞 Low self-esteem
- 😞 Sleep problems
- 📉 Poor academic performance
- 🚫 Social withdrawal
- 💔 Increased risk of self-harm and suicidal thoughts

Tips to Stay Well

- * Think before you post
- * Keep personal information private
- * Block and report bullies
Save evidence (screenshots)
- * Talk to a trusted adult, teacher, or counselor
- * Support friends who are being bullied
- * Practice responsible social media use

